

“iChange for Future”

Almost 40 great people from many various countries such as: Poland, Ukraine, Bulgaria, Croatia, Georgia, Armenia and Azerbaijan gathered in Cyprus on 5-13th November to take part in the ERASMUS+ youth exchange “iChange for future”. Where in all these countries was rainy or snowy, the participants in the sunny village in Cyprus, Agros, could share and develop their knowledge about ecology. For this reason, the participants were taking part in many workshops about climate change, greenhouse effect, energy saving and reducing carbon techniques. Moreover, the participants had chance to share their eco-friendly habits and gain the knowledge how to improve them. They could do this by participation in debates, theatre plays, creating the newspapers and many more activities. The crucial part was preparing the campaign about the extremely significant role of protection the environment. In order to take action at once, the participants planted trees in Agros’ park.

The youth exchange was also a time, in which participants could explore the island by going to Limassol and Nicosia. The first trip was provided with the knowledge about the history and culture of Cyprus. The second one was an occasion to receive some information about the work of the European Union by visiting the European Union House.

This project was a real possibility to get to know the other cultures better and learn to speak different languages. For sure, this experience was especially important to Armenians and Azerbaijanis, whose countries have been in conflict for many years.

These all mentioned above factors influenced that everyone enjoyed this project, gained some new skills and met really great people.
